

New Pilgrim Path

There is much in the world that needs mending. Yet most of us, in our limited spheres, must learn to embrace small practices of repair. These practices, though small, are profoundly significant. They are the tiny threads that weave a society where, as Dorothy Day said, "it is easier for people to be good." "11 small ways we can help mend the world" is written by New York Times journalist, Tish Harrison Warren, an American Anglican priest. She presents small and practical ways that anyone can use to practice repair. Access them here: www.newpilgrimpath.ie.

Summer Dues

Archbishop Dermot Farrell has asked that we support once again a Summer Dues Collection. Last year's collection helped greatly towards building up the reserves of the Common Fund which provides for the priests of our Diocese and supports those priests who are sick or retired.

Corpus Christi, Year C, 19th June, 2022. Bulletin No: 1416.

Often people in church are just so many strangers packed into the one space. They are there simultaneously but are not really there together.

People don't have a sense of being community, of being the Body of Christ, of being branches of the one true Vine. Hence, they can come to church and leave again without meeting anyone. Whatever they take away, it won't be from one another. Nor will they give anything to one another.

This is not the way it is meant to be. Even on a human level we have a deep need for community. This is where the Eucharist can be a tremendous help, and a challenge too.

It is not easy to be a Christian in today's world. But it is virtually impossible on one's own. We need a support system to sustain our faith, hope and love. Here is where the community comes in. The fruits of community bonding, sharing and togetherness.

God doesn't mean us to do it alone. By inviting us to partake of the sacred food of the Eucharist, Jesus makes us his companions and friends. And in doing so, we ought to become companions and friends to one another.

When we leave the church we must not forget all this. When we depart from here we must take out into the world some of the warmth we have experienced here.
